Faculty of Economics and Business Learning and Teaching Forum

The Faculty of Economics and Business is organising a Business Learning Forum on ‘Assessment for Learning’ 4-5 November. It is an opportunity to learn with and from colleagues about assessments that enhance students’ learning and motivation.

The sessions include showcases from Faculty of Economics and Business academics as well as exceptional teachers from other Universities. The master class session will be led by Tom Angelo (LaTrobe) on Assessment by Design.

By the forum’s end, participants can expect to have:

- Identified at least three methods they will be able to implement in providing meaningful feedback to large student cohorts.
- Planned at least one quick and simple change aimed at optimising assessment practice
- Begun planning at least one more substantive change aimed at optimising assessment/feedback practice
- Thought through systematically the potential costs and benefits of that substantive change
- Identify qualities of assessment students associate with effective learning;
- Identified one or more colleagues with whom they might collaborate to improve assessment/feedback practices and/or systems.

Forum Details
Date: Thursday 4 and Friday 5 November
Time: 9am - 5pm
Venue: Law School Foyer
Contact: For registration and updated information on the program visit the website or send an email.

The event is free and lunch will be provided