Update on OLT grants

A brief update and a reminder:

- Information on the success of grant applications in Round 1, 2014, is still awaited.
- Attending the workshop on Thursday 8 May, 10 am to 12 noon, is strongly advised for all those intending to submit an application for Round 2, 2014. Register here
- The internal, University of Sydney, submission date for Round 2 of the 2014 OLT grants is 5pm Thursday 29 May.
- It is anticipated that the call for applications for Round 1, 2015 will be announced in August 2014 and that applications will be due in November 2014. If you are considering applying, it's advisable to start preparing early to clarify the aims and scope of your project, and to arrange appropriate partnerships. This round is expected to be for full applications, EOs and seed projects.

In addition to those mentioned in the last Teaching@Sydney we are pleased to congratulate Professor Philip Poronnik for his role as investigator on partnership grants with RMIT and Curtin. The first of the grants will investigate 'How universities can best support students to develop generic skills: enacting strategies for graduate employability'; the second is for 'The STEM ecosystem: building cross-disciplinary leadership capacity in science, technology, engineering and mathematics'.
